Lord, Jesus Christ, You Who travelled throughout Galilee healing the sick, enabling the blind to see and the lame to walk, bring healing to Your people who need it this day. Grant relief to the ones who suffer pain and physical torment. Give peace to those whose minds are tortured by mental illness and anxiety. Comfort those who are alone in their suffering; may Your people reach out to them and to all the needy this day. Send Your grace to the caregivers that they may be gentle and effective agents of Your loving mercy. May our sufferings be joined with Yours to bring healing throughout the world. Amen

And for the Others...
You Sing

Look at the birds of the air, they neither nor reap nor gather into barns, yet your heavenly Father feeds them.
~Matthew 6:26

One of the largest works of charity of the Knights of Colombus, the largest Catholic fraternal organization in the world, is something called the “Vicarius Christi Fund,” which is a $20 million endowment earmarked for the Holy Father. The interest from this fund each year is given to the Pope for his private charities.

Because of this unique relationship between the church and the Knights of Colombus, some representatives have the honour of a private audience with the Pope from time to time. Heck, $20 million will get you dinner at the Vatican.

I’ve sold life insurance to the Knights and their families for more than thirty years and in the mid-1990’s, our family had a private audience in the Vatican. Christine and I, along with my twin sons, Cory and Jason, got to meet and shake hands with the Pope in his chambers. It was a high point in my life, to say the least.

While in Rome, it coincidentally happened that a conclave of sorts was going on during our visit. Many of the American bishops, archbishops and cardinals were in Rome at the same time.

We were delighted to meet many of them at a lovely banquet hosted on one of the Seven Hills of Rome in a setting unlike any I have ever attended. To my surprise, I met one of my old Sunday school teachers who had been a priest at St. Peter’s Catholic Church in Columbia, South Carolina, where my family went to Mass every Sunday. That young priest, Father Joseph Bernardin, was now Cardinal Joseph Bernardin. He has taught many of my ten brothers and sisters while at St. Peter’s, and my late parents knew his parents quite well. Still, I was surprised that he remembered the Aun name.

We were enjoying cocktails together outside the banquet chamber, under glorious trees, as the sun was setting. We shared a lovely conversation with the cardinal recalling his days at the University of South Carolina.

While talking with him, the birds came home to roost in the huge tree under where we were chatting. In the course of our conversation, one of the birds, which obviously enjoyed a bountiful day of scavenging, did what the birds do when they eat their fill—it voided itself. Unfortunately, the cardinal was right in its path.

Let the record reflect that I am a pretty quick wit and always have a comment in my hip pocket. However, you just don’t tease a cardinal when a bird poops on his hat. Cardinal Bernardin felt the bird droppings hit his beanie. He reached up to see what it was and realized that he then had poop on his hand.

I didn’t know where to go with this, but I knew that no confession I would ever make again would excuse me for making one of my typical off-the-cuff “poop comments.” So, for once in my life, I kept my mouth shut. I did not say a word, mainly because I wanted to hear how the good cardinal was going to deal with this.

Realizing that he had been nailed by a wayward bird from above, he looked up at the tree, looked down at his hand, and then looked up at the tree and said, “... and ... for the others... you sing!”
